GLENN HENDRIKS

The MANAGEMENT TEAM with a combined experience of over 200 years, our services include everything to do with Fire Protection Systems including service, maintenance and installation. All of our works are carried out by experienced technicians holding the relevant class of license and qualifications in the specific field of work being provided.

Part of the Creative fire information management system includes the use of a software contract management system that enables us to manage people, the services we provide and information on the site under contract. The use of this software has streamlined the way we do business and has effectively reduced both lost time and inefficiency within the business. All paperwork is logged into the system and can be retrieved ad hoc. This means that any questions you might have regarding the contract can be retrieved at short notice and a successful resolution to your questions can be made.

We strive to make CREATIVE FIRE more than just a profitable enterprise. We aim to align our goals with that of the communities in which we operate. Hence we provision some of our energies and profits towards local charitable organisations.

CREATIVE FIRE also promote healthy living through sporting associations. We have been active participants and sponsors of Anglican Church Grammar School Basketball Club for over twenty years.

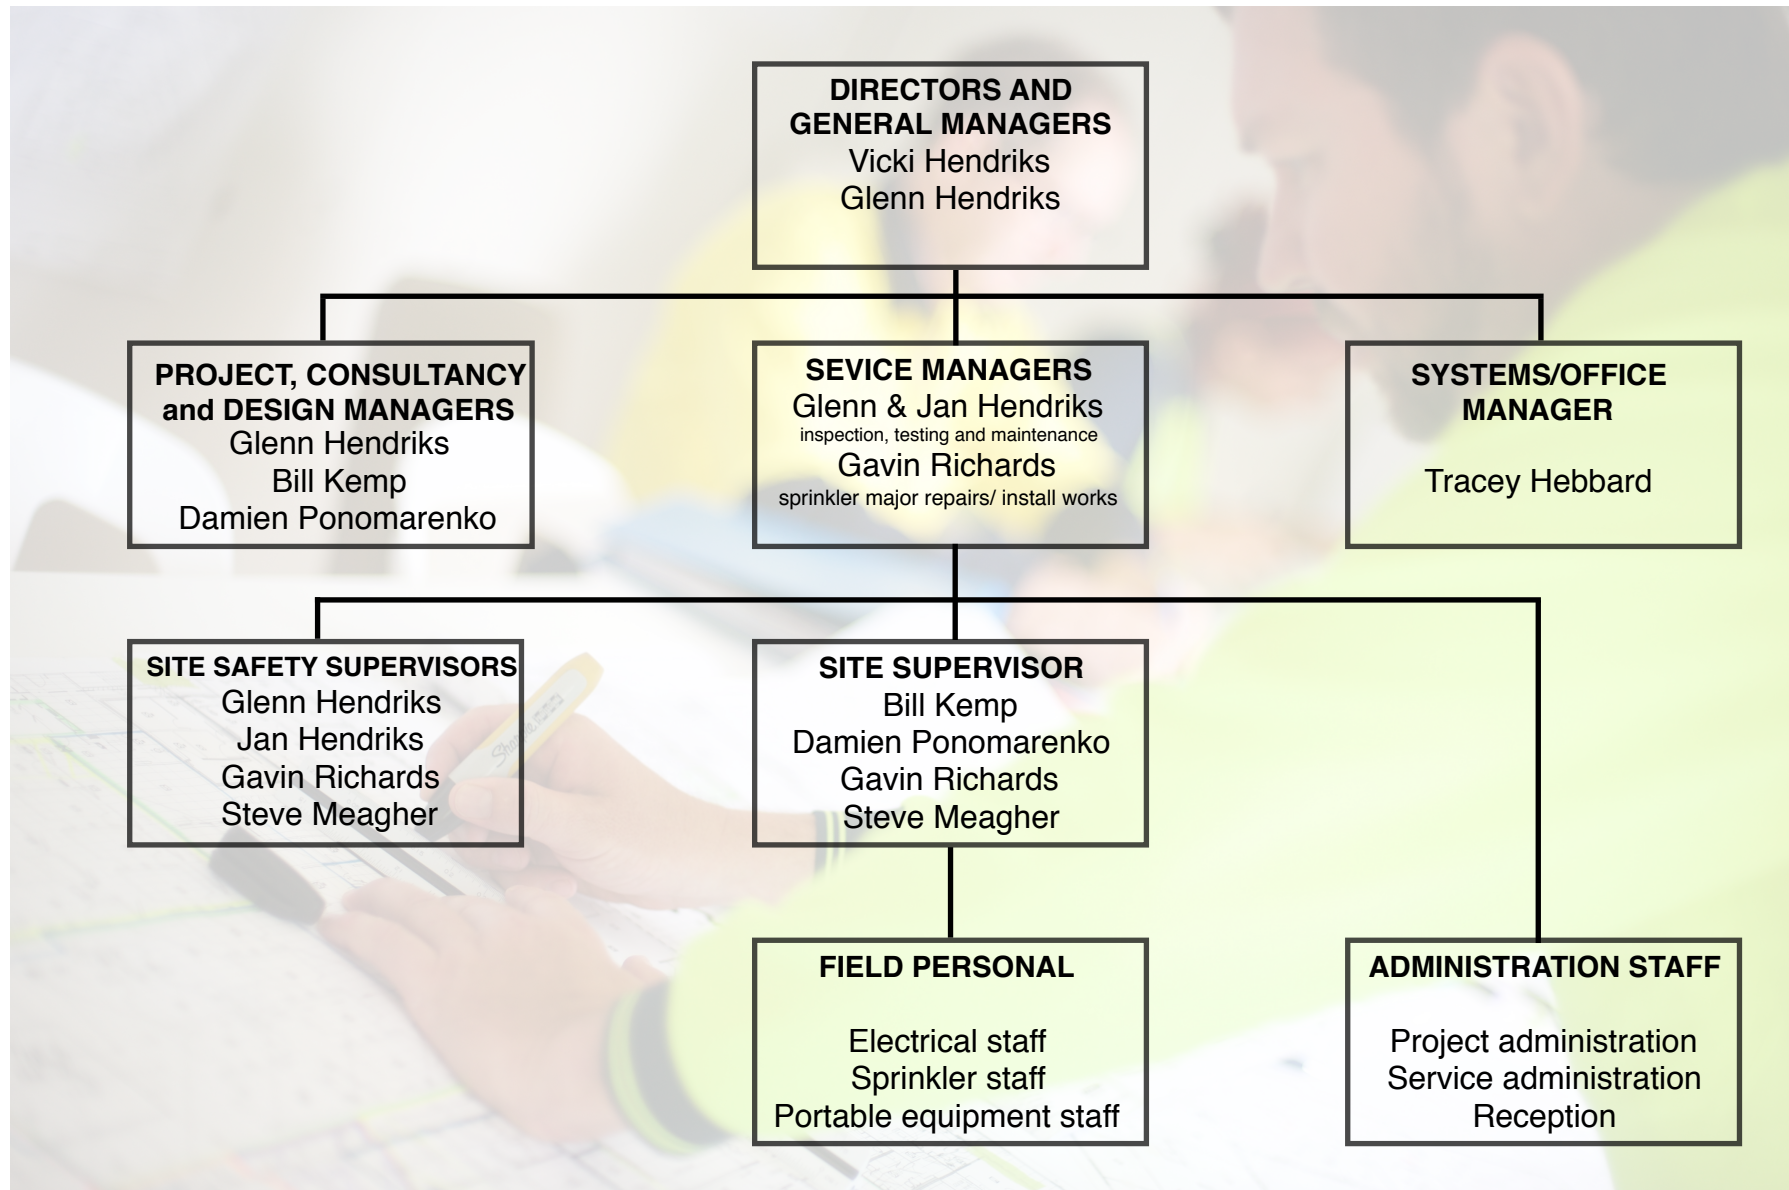

CULTURAL AWARENESS

CREATIVE FIRE acknowledge the traditional owners of this land and recognise the value indigenous culture has for Australia and the world as a whole. In particular we recognise and value the Gubbi Gubbi and Waka Waka clans north of Brisbane and the Yuggera clan to the south.

As we are, at times, using earth moving equipment to provide fire services, we have asked our staff, contractors and landowners to be aware of possible artefacts that may have cultural significance to the lands traditional owners.

Furthermore, CREATIVE FIRE extends our cultural awareness policies to all cultural groups in Australia. We are respectful and embracing of all world traditions and systems.
